TO BE AT PENDLETON

HAS WIRED TO ASCERTAIN
DATE OF HIS APPOINT-MENT

CARE FOR CROWDS

Col. Stribling Visitor and Stated
Yesterday That Committees
Working Over Time.

"The Hon. David F. Houston, secretary of the United States department of agriculture, has telegraphed to find out when he is to make his address at the centennial celebration of the Pendleton Farmers' society," declared Col. J. C. Stribling, president of the society, who was a visitor in the city yesterday. "The secretary states in his telegram that he proposes to spend Wednesday, the 13th, at the celebration, and I have wired him that we expect him on the rostrum at 10 o'clock. He will not begin speaking exactly at 2 o'clock, because we want to give him a reception before he starts. He has stated that he wants to shake the hand of every member of the Pendleton Farmers' society, and that will take 30 minutes and may be more."

Col. Stribling is bubbling over with enthusiasm. He says that all of the committees are working over time, and that everything is shaping up nicely for the great celebration. "It is going to be one grand success, and the biggest thing we have ever held up in this part of the country," declared the colonel.

The society is in receipt of the following letter from Major Benj. Sloan of Columbia:

"I am enclosing with my check for ten dollars a request to be enrolled as an honorary member of the Pendleton Farmers' society. I shall esteem it as a high honor to be so enrolled."

"The affections of my heart are centered on the scenes and associations of my boyhood days in old Pendleton, and as the days go by this affection grows stronger and stronger."

"I shall, if possible, be present at your centennial celebration in October, to which I have been kindly invited to attend by your chairman of entertainment committee, Mr. B. H. Sadler."

Col. Stribling says he greatly appreciates this letter from Maj. Sloan, and that the major will be elected to the "highest honors" of the society at the last special meeting of the century, which will be held next Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

"Do you know, and what I am going to say is an historic fact," that in November, 1888, the Pendleton Farmers' society appointed a committee to seven to investigate the feasibility of founding an agricultural college," asked Col. Stribling. "Well, Maj. Sloan was a member of that committee and today is the only surviving member. The work of that committee was the planting of the germ which later developed into Clemson college."

Col. Stribling says he and every official of the society feel honored because of Maj. Sloan's desire to be enrolled as an honorary member of the society. During his visit in Pendleton Maj. Sloan will be the guest of Col. Stribling.

The question of serving dinners to the hundreds of visitors during the three days of the celebration was discussed by Col. Stribling today. "There will be four restaurants, and the proprietor of one of these tells me he can serve 1,000 dinners each day," said Col. Stribling. "In addition to this the ladies of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches and the civic association will have houses for serving dinner. And at the meeting of the society to be held Wednesday the matter of the society's backing up the move for a daily barbecue will be discussed. A barbecue served every day will be a drawing card and will care for many. We do not anticipate any trouble at all about feeding the visitors—they'll get a plenty and more."

The colonel said that Prof. Harper is advised that an old razor back hog has been shipped to Pendleton, and that another is to be brought from the mountains above Walhalla.

Mr. J. W. Wofford has been selected to manage the exhibit hall. The exhibits will be on display in the society's hall, and all persons having relics of any description are asked to send them in. They will be well cared for and returned. The committee especially wishes pictures of old members of the society and pictures of prominent citizens of the past and present time.

Col. Stribling wants the public reminded of the fact that the exhibit from the state department of agriculture will be housed in Pendleton during the celebration. "There will be two large store rooms in addition to the farmers' hall set aside for these exhibits. And Furman Smith is going to have a splendid exhibit of grain, also. Mr. Smith kindly states he will be glad to direct the preparation of the exhibits," declared the colonel.

"Persons desiring to operate auto bus lines from Pendleton to Clemson and to Calhoun will be permitted to do so, and they'll make a lot of money out of it," declared Col. Stribling. He says the society is anxious to have every convenience possible for the visitors.

Capt. J. R. Anderson of the Blue Ridge railway expects to start an advertising campaign for the celebration in the next day or so. He is expecting dodgers and peddlers from the Southern railway and just as soon as they come in the stations up and down the line will be placarded, and newspaper advertising will be commenced in earnest."
